Besides the other attractions of Mr. Ragan's illustrated lecture, this evening, are promised some views of local interest, pictures of Council Bluffs celebrities, etc. Yesterday was a very quiet day in police circles, no arrests being made during the day. Mr. James Veezey and Miss Nellie Fitz-Mr. James Veezey and Miss Nellie Fitz-gerald, both of the book bindery department of the Nonparell, were married in Omaha Saturday afternoon. The match was opposed by the family of the young lady, and strat-egy had to be resorted to in order that the muptials might be celebrated. The pros-pective bride informed her relatives that she was going to Omaha to visit with her married sister for a few days, and departed. Her future husband joined her on Nebraska soil, and in a very short time they were made one. They then returned to this city and are making their home with the rela-tives of the groom, on North Sixth street.

The elevator burned Saturday night just southeast of the city was owned by Mr. F. W. Olmstead, who has been running it for some time. He stated yesterday that the first information he had of the fire he read in the morning paper. He drove out to the spot and found the building burned to the ground. No cause for the fire can be ascer-tained, and its origin is a mystery. The building and machinery were valued at $3,500, insured for $2,000. Couldn't Wait.

To-morrow is the day set down on the bills for the formal opening of Manawa for the season of 1889, but the appearances at that popular resort yesterday indicated that it had come off prematurely, forty-eight hours in advance of the appointed time. The motor trains were liberally patronized, and during the day several hundred people vis-ited the lake. The steamers did a lively business, and the surface of the lake was dotted with row boats. The many improvements made there since the close of the seapleasure prophesied for the coming summer.

The hotel was not open, but it presented a very attractive appearance in a new coat of paint, and the neat lawn and new walks through the grounds and along the bank of the lake were very inviting. The changes of a few months have greatly altered and at the same time improved the appearance of the Wholesale Horse Stealing. Officer Cusick has just completed a clever piece of detective work upon which he has en working for several days. some time, but the stolen horses were finally tracked to South Omaha, where they had been unloaded by the thief at the stock yards. They were then taken from there, and again all trace of them was lost.

The matter was placed by Mr. Pickett in the hands of Officer Cusick. The officer was not long in fluding that the animals had been run across the river to lowa soil, and disposed of to the farmers of castern Pottawattamic. For the past three days the officer has been scouring the country, looking up and identifying the stolen horses. He has thus far recovered seventeen of them. Some were found in this city, one in the possession of Speacer Smith and one at the parn of Thomas Skinner.

The name of the thief is A. Hass, but he has not yet been apprehended, and probably will not be, as he has a three months' start of the officers, by whom he is very much wanted just at present. The animals were sold to the buyers at a very low figure, but the whilom owners will be out just what they paid for them, as the animals have been taken possession of by the rightful owners. It is thought that all of the remaining horses will be recovered in the next few days.

THE RESULT OF FOUR YEARS

Rev. Dr. Cooley Reviews the History of His Church in a Sermon.

SUNDAY PLEASURE SEEKERS.

They Crowd Into Fairmount Park and Rush For Manawa-The New Ogden Landlords-An Elevator Burned.

Four Years of Church History. Yesterday was the fourth anniversary of the reorganization of the First Baptist church in Council Bluffs under the pastorate of Rev. D. H. Cooley, D. D., and at the morning hour that divine took occasion to review briefly the work accomplished during this time. The sermon was full of suggestions for practical work along religious lines. He used as a text I Samuel vii:12. In introducing the subject proper, he said: "It is the dictate of religion as well as good judgment to commemorate great events which God has accomplished with men. * * * This was the practice of God's people in all time. The children of Israel set up a stone as a re-minder of their deliverance from their strange gods and their victory over their enomies in battle. * * * For four years we have sustained our present relation as pastor and people. During all this time God has given us success in all departments of church work. This shows to me that he has a work to be done in Council Bluffs, which He expects us to do."

After expounding the scriptural subject at length, the speaker gave a course of interest-ing facts in connection with that church and organization. He said the Baptist church was not a fashionable body, nor did it strive for popular favor. It had no presidents and but few governors, judges, etc. Some of its members had been elevated to these positions, but when they had acquired public favor, they had joined some other and a more fashionable church. The Baptist church is singularly simple in its articles of faith, and its rules of practice are those laid down by Christ himself. No elaborate liturgy, surpliced choir or gaudy trappings to please the eye, but rather the spiritual power which God gives to reach the heart and save the soul. He thought the lack in popularity was due in a measure to the lack in advertising the church. If the Methodist, Presbyterian or Episcopal church, have an annual gathering, the papers give them column after column of their proceedings. But not so with the Baptist church. It strove to please God rather than to win the applause of men. The nembership now exceeds 3,000,000 souls, and while one hundred years ago but one in sixty-five of the population of this country were Baptists, now one in twenty-two is the ratio. He said the Baptist church had more converts in foreign mission work than all other churches combined. The Baptist thurch has a larger membership than any other church. He then referred to the history of the local organization. He bemoaned the fact that lack of harmony had existed within it. He said doubtless there were souls now in per-dition who would have been saved but for this. If the devil can get God's people by the ears, he has then accomplished his pur-pose in destroying the efficiency of the church. The church organized with a membership of fifty-six, two hundred and thirty-one had been added, thirty-three had been dismissed, four had been excluded and one had died. Nearly $2,200 had been raised, be-sides quite large sums for special benevolent and Sunday school purposes. The past year has been the best one, sixty-nine have been received into membership. The church is now self-sustaining and doing a grand and successful work in the city. All these results the speaker attributed to the fact that God had been the helper of the church along the lines indicated. He believed that greater results than these would be acceptabled in sults than these would be accomplished in the year to come.

In the course of his sermon he referred to the building of the new bridge and the motor lines, electric and steam (to Manawa), as a grand thing in developing the material in-terests of Council Bluffs, but as a very bad thing viewed from a moral standpoint, inasmuch as it all put a premium on Sabbath desecration. People would patronize them and visit the various pleasure resorts about the city, to the detriment of their spiritual welfare. This was productive of a low rewelfare. This was productive of a low re-ligious life with many professed christians— this Sabbath visiting, etc. He also referred to the evils of intemperance, licentiousness etc., which is, he said, rampant in the city, but gave as an excuse the fact that for years this was a frontier city, and all trunk lines of railroad center here. This evil is being bettered gradually, with good prospects of a final disappearance at an early day.

Reunited Partners. Mr. W. H. H. Pierce, of Sioux City, has already assumed the management of the Ogden house, for the new firm of Pierce & Etter. A telegram was yesterday received from Mr. Etter stating that he would leave Los Angeles, Cal., next Wednesday morning. In speaking of Council Bluffs yesterday, Mr. Pierce stated that he was by no means a stranger here, having been in the employ of Deere. Wells & Co., in this city, from 1882 to 1885, and since leaving here had cherished the warmest feelings towards Council Bluffs and its citizens. Said he:

"Mr. Etter and I are not strangers to each other or to the hotel business. Twenty years ago we were running a hotel together at Hastings, Mian., and it will be a great pleasure to be together again. I find that Messrs. Winter & Milligan have put the Ogden in splendid condition, and that it stands very highly with traveling men. We shall keep it up to its present high standard, and run it in a manner creditable to our-selves and Council Bluffs."

Taken With the Park.

The first Sunday in May witnessed an animated scene in Fairmount park. Early in the day visitors began to assemble there. and during the afternoon it was estimated that there were at least 4,000 people in the park. The center around which they all seemed to gather was the little artificial lake, and countless little groups, with their lunch baskets and other accompaniments of a genuine picnic day, were to be seen in every direction. Hundreds were there from Omaha, but the majority of them were residents of the city that lay spread out at the feet of the bluff.

Many of them had never before visited the

Many of them had never before visited the park, although they lived within sight of it for weeks, and some for months. To these the scenes spread before them were indeed a revelation. They had heard of the protty walks, the pleasant drives, the shady glens, and, withal, the charming picturesqueness of this favored soot, but they could not comprehend it all without seeins it. With them prehend it all without seeing it. With them seeing was believing, and exclamations of delight were heard on every hand. A variety of circumstances had continued to draw them to the park.

The delightful weather was an incentive to get out of doors and go somewhere, and suriously to see the work being done on the deep cut that is to admit the electric motor-line to Fairmount, and the attractive lake and foundations just completed by the park commissioners, directed their footsteps commissioners, directed their footsteps toward the spot that is the property and pride of the city of Council Biuffs. On the preceding Sunday the grounds for the Chautauqua Assembly had been the objective point of the throngs of pleasure seekors of the twin cities, but that place was comparatively deserted yesterday, and all interest centered in the park. The number of visitors was actually surprising, yet there is every indication that as soon as the motor every indication that as soon as the motor cars are running to the park, yesterday's scenes there will be repeated every Sunday.

Burglary on the increase. Aside from the numerous burglaries perpetrated during the past few weeks, several unsuccessful attempts to enter residences in various parts of the city have been reported The last was Saturday night, when the mid right proviers tried the windows of the residence of W. C. Estep, of the undertaking firm of Field & Estep. That gentleman returned home from a late call just as they were prying up the window of his bed room. As he went up the walk they skipped over the back fence. Several similar cases have been reported, and demands are made for better police protection.

It is urged that the present size of the force is much too small for a city with the popula-tion of Council Bluffs. The protection of the business part of the city is not of the best outsiness part of the city is not of the best, and the residence portions are left almost absolutely without police patrol. Every few months an outbreak of the criminal classes brings this matter prominently before the public, and the demand is repeated. Until the council is ready to accede to this de-mand, the only sure resource for the citizen will be to arm himself with a Gatling gun and keep watch for the lawless marauders.

THE CZAR'S GIGANTIC ARMY. Verestceagin, the Artist, Writes of His Country's Defenses.

In accordance with my promise before leaving New York I send you herewith a few facts regarding Russia's military affairs, writes the great Russian artist Vasili Verestchagin to the New York World. The information concerning the vast organization of the Czar's soldiery I procured from an army officer of high rank, whose name, if I were permitted to give it, would be at once recognized as a military authority.

In our preparations for war we are pessimists, always expecting the worst. The Russian military organization is under the direction of Gen. Obrutcheff Chief of the General Staff, with Gen. Vannovsky, Minister of War. These are assisted by Gen. Kuropatkine Skobeleff's bosom friend and Chief of Staff. Obrutheff has devoted a great leal of time and attention to Russia's defenses on the German frontier and is consequently unpopular in Berlin. Indeed, it is said that the young German Emperor during his recent visit to St. Petersburg displayed his dislike of the worthy Russian organizer oy practically Taafe, in Austria, Obrutcheff was omitted from the list of recipients of Germa decorations.

Vannovsky is a very efficient and precise officer, but Kuropatkine may be called the very soul of the military organization in Russia. He is a highly intelligent man, and although his bravery is not of that brilliant, that 'elegant'' description as was Skobeleff's he is exceedling brave; quite a num-ber of horses were killed under him, many cases of ammunition have at different times been exploded at his side, he has been wounded at least five or six times, and yet he is hale and hearty, and is certain to devote all his strength and abilities to the task of averting the German onslaught sooner or later to beardown on France and Russia.

THE ARMIES OF EUROPE ESTIMATED. As to numbers and readiness for action the Russian army in the course of the last eight years has achieved results no one would have formerly anticipated. In the good old times we were always trusting to luck, always falling back on our "let us chance it." "never mind," "there will be plenty of time to prepare yet." But at last we have realized that underestimation of one's adversary is the first step on the road of defeat, and therefore we are now getting ready in earnest-in a scientific manner! Our aim is a far reaching one; it consists of nothing short of enabling ourselves to resist the onslaught of the whole League of the Peace, even if it were to be reinforced by England and Turkey—to conduct war simultaneously in Europe and Asia!

In consideration of such an emerg-ency we make the following calculation of military forces: In the front line Germany and Austria combined can bring out about million and a half men against us; then, judging from her present at-titude, France will either restrict herself to that number, or else reinforce her army by another million of men. Bearing this in mind; we are preparing to face the enemy with 2,000,000 men on the first line, and to be able to reinforce these on the second line by 1.000,000 more men, independently of such military forces as would be ready for action on the side of the Caucasus, Turkestan, and Siberia. Such a calculation of military forces affords some foundation to hope for success; at the same time, however, have to admit from the start that the massing of Russian forces on the western seat of the war would be much slower than that of the German army. Therefore it has become indispensible for us to take special measures that would enable us to resist the first pressure of the enormous massed forces of the enemy, since, owing to the higher perfection of their railroad net and lesser distances over which their army would have to be mobilized, the enemy will be ready sooner than we could be.

THE THREE SEATS OF WAR. We are prepared to see the first en-counter result comparatively to our disadvantage. In order not to be beaten in that first trying period we have been for the last eight years energetically preparing three seats of war adjoining the three military districts—those of Vilna, Warsaw and Kief. Even at the present time in each one of these districts a separate army can be mobilized in nearly the same lapse of time as would take for the mobilization of the German-and certainly as fast as would be mobilized the Austrian army.

We calculate, and not without foundation, that, were we to assume a purely defensive position on our own lines, our armies stationed in the three frontier districts would be amply sufficient to withstand the first shock of the enemy until reinforcements should come from the interior military districts. Our western lines-fortisled as they are at present by 7,000 heavy cannons—could be held against forces double the size of ours, and, in places difficult of access, even against a force of thrice our own. Subsequently, as reinforcements would reach us, we would be able to assume the offensive on such points as would be found most fitting, considering the plans and the developments of the war.

There can be no doubt about the final result. No matter at what cost, no matter how many years the war should last, we would fight the enemy at every step. and peace would be conjuded only then when "there will not remain a single man of the enemy on Russian soil.

In case luck should be against us in the beginning, we would not be afraid to fall back, burning down every city, town and village, not only up to Mos cow-Moscow included-but even as far as Kazan, and Kazan included. Were we driven to it, we would burn every-thing yet further east, in our firm conviction that the enemy would certainly be beaten in the end, retreating, would surely be annihilated.

There is no need to enlarge on the qualities of our infantry. Sufficient to recall the expression of Napoieon the First: "It is enough to kill a Russian soldier- you have yet to nail him down to the ground.

So far as numbers, material conditions and instruction go, our artillery would not yield a point to the German. THE INEXHAUSTABLE COSSACK RE-

As to the cavalry, our supplies in that direction are almost inexhaustable. We can bring forward such enormous cavalry masses as could not be duplicated by the united efforts of the whole of Europe. In the first line we have, all ready, nearly 200,000 dragoons and Cossacks; in the second line we can muster large masses of (unprepared yet in a regular way) Tsherkesses, Bashkirs. Kirgheez and Turcomans. All of those are panting for action, and if the Government does not proceed right now to organize them into regular lighting units it is solely because of the fear that they should turn out to be an additional burden in times of peace. Those nationalities, added to our Cossack reserves, would supply, if need be, 200,000 more mounted men. Were a cavalry of such a description let loose on the enemy's and it would not only refuse to spare telegraph poles and railroad lines, but literally would sweep all before it in those places through which it would

In round numbers we have now from 300,000 to 350,00 soldiers on our western and southwestern frontier, and within ten days those could be so reinforced as to number half a million men—a force sufficient for offering the first repulse to the enemy in the districts of Warsaw, Vilna and Kief. Having shaken off all entangling alliances and adopted the policy of "free hands," we can now nake our minds easy concerning the League, whose ends we have been serv-ing to our own disadvantage. We can and must wait, wait and wait, without minding such as praise us, nor such as, on the contrary, get angry at us. That we have no need to enlarge our territory any one will believe, and on the other hand it would be dishonorable in us to give up our own-a fact which the people are prompt to recognize.

FARM NOTES.

The fact that trotting stallions are selling at thousands of dollars each, demonstrates that the business is on a firm foundation. Bell Boy brought $51,000 at auction; $50,000 is paid for Stamboul, while many others sell almost as high. They bring these prices because they are trotters and will with reasonable certainty reproduce speed.

John G. Stewart of Council Bluffs is breeding the thoroughbred, and has a fine lot of stallions, mares and young animals. It is understood they have some twenty head of two and threeyear-olds in training. Dr. Pinney, also located at Council Bluffs, has a standard stallion and some good mares. Wade Carey is also located here and has some good ones, among them being the pacer Tommy Lynn, 2:151, Mary F., 2:341, and several others without records, but likely to be heard from during the Plum trees thrive best on a somewhat heavy soil, though they can be grown also on light sandy locations.

Do not use sprouted seed of any kind. Potatoes that are kept at too high a temperature will sprout, which injures them to a certain extent.

The best way to keep down thistles is to cut them down as fast as they appear above ground. No plant can endure such treatment, and the thistle is no exception. They will in time become exhausted and die. The work must be done at the proper time, however, and must not be neglected, as a single plant, if allowed to grow, will cause extra work. The thistle must never be allowed to mature seed, and if the tops are kept down the roots will be given extra duty and fail to spread. Persistent warfare, however, is necessary.
